How to use this sheet

Medications & Contacts Card · fold it in half, live in your wallet while traveling.

What goes on the card

Prescription names and doses, known allergies, and a short list of phone numbers. Keep it plain — a stranger filling in for you in a waiting room should be able to act on it.

Two copies, always

One travels in your wallet's outer pocket so it's reachable without digging through a carry-on in a fog. One stays with a trusted person at home. Shred both copies after the trip — it's personal information.

Not medical advice

This is an organizer, not a health authority. Pack enough cured medication per trip days plus buffer, and check your destination's rules for anything controlled. Ask your pharmacist or prescriber about refills, storage heat, or time zones — they actually enjoy being asked before, not after.

Original bottles, carry-on

Original labeled bottles beat a smooth-pill-organizer at any checkpoint. Keep them at the carry-on, not the checked bag — delays happen, and so does lost luggage.

Medications & Contacts Card

One card, folded in half, lives in the travel wallet. This is personal information only — keep copies safe and at home.

Medications I bring

NAME	DOSE	WHEN I TAKE IT	PRESCRIBER	NOTES

Allergies & reactions

ALLERGY	WHAT HAPPENS	WHAT HELPS

Severe-allergy note (EpiPen, plan of action):

Who to call

ROLE	NAME	PHONE
Doctor
Pharmacy
Emergency at home
Local emergency number	United States / Canada: 911 · European Union: 112 · UK: 999 · Australia: 000
Travel insurance line
Next of kin on this trip
Contact at home

Before you fold it up

- Medications travel in original labeled bottles in the carry-on, not in daily organizers, so the dose and the label agree at any counter.
- Double quantity is hard to buy twice — pack the exact number of trip days plus 4 days of buffer in case of delays.
- Fold along this line: keep personal rows on the inside, contacts on the outer panel. Write "Property of ___" on the outer panel.
- Leave a second copy of this card with a trusted person at home. Shred it after the trip.